

Putting it into Practice: 2014 Pediatric Environmental Health Training Resource

DISCLAIMER

- The opinions and conclusions expressed in the modules and user guides of this training resource do not necessarily represent the official position of the Children's Environmental Health Network (CEHN).
- The mention of specific companies or of certain manufacturers' products does not imply that they are endorsed or recommended by CEHN in preference to others of a similar nature that are not mentioned. Excepting errors and omissions, the names of proprietary products are distinguished by initial capital letters.
- The contents of these training modules are not intended as, nor should be considered a substitute for, professional medical advice. Do not use the information contained therein to diagnose or treat any medical or health condition. Always consult a physician or other qualified healthcare provider with any questions regarding a medical condition or the general health of your family.
- This publication is being distributed without warranty of any kind, either express or implied. In no event shall CEHN be liable for damages, including any general, special, incidental, or consequential damages, arising out of the use of this publication. The contents of this training resource are based upon references available in the published literature as of the last update. Users are encouraged to search standard medical databases for updates in the science for issues of particular interest or sensitivity in their regions and areas of specific concern. If users of this training module should find it necessary to make any modifications (abridgement, addition or deletion) to any of the modules or user guides, the adaptor shall be responsible for all modifications made. CEHN disclaims all responsibility for adaptations made by others. All modifications shall be clearly distinguished from the original CEHN material.